1. Purpose of Policy

The Probation Policy at Carlow College, St. Patrick's (hereafter Carlow College) will ensure consistent and equitable treatment of all employees who begin employment with the College. This Policy is drafted in line with the Terms of Employment (Information) Act 1994, the Unfair Dismissals Acts, 1977-2001 and the Minimum Notice and Terms of Employment Act 1973. New employees have a clause in their contracts stating that they must satisfactorily serve a probationary period before the appointment is confirmed. The probationary period is usually for a period of six months (pending length of contract). The probationary period may be extended at the College's discretion but will not in any case exceed 12 months

If probation has been satisfactorily completed at the end of the six-month or nine-month period (depending on contract type), the appointment is confirmed.

The legal entitlements of Employees will not be affected by the application of this Policy.

The purpose of the probationary period is to:

- a) Provide the College with an opportunity to establish the employee's suitability for the role.
- b) Provide the new employee with an opportunity to fully discuss and understand the role and to receive feedback on his/her performance.

If the employee is successful, the College will confirm the completion of the probationary period.

2. Scope of Policy

The probationary period applies to all new employees. The Policy also applies to all employees who change roles within the College. The policy applies to all contracts of employment; i.e. permanent, contracts of indefinite duration, fixed term, and specified purpose contract.

Existing employees who change roles and/or who are promoted within the College whose probation is not successful will return to their previous role and salary.

3. Policy Statement

The primary objective of Probation Policy and its procedures is to decide on the suitability or otherwise of an employee for the post to which she/he was appointed. The Probation Policy and its procedures should also help the Line Manager and the employee to progressively identify the strengths and weaknesses of the employee in the post; to identify areas of competence, performance or behaviour which would benefit from training and development; and to help the employee to successfully complete probation.

The Probation Policy and its procedures also provides an opportunity for discussion of the employee's future potential and future training/development needs. The College will make every effort to facilitate the satisfactory completion of the probationary period and where training and development are required for the employee to match the job requirements, he/she should be informed in writing of what he/she has to do and the timescale for achievement of satisfactory performance.

If, however, work performance is not up to the required standard the College may either take remedial action or terminate employment. Please see below for further information:

1. If the employee has not reached the required standard, the College may either extend the probationary period in order that remedial action can be taken or the College may terminate the employment.
2. At any stage during the probationary period the College reserves the right to address disciplinary misconduct matters through probationary review assessments¹ The College reserves the right to bypass, at its discretion, any step in the disciplinary process in view of the employee's probationary status or to terminate the contract with notice, if it thinks that the severity of the action warrants it. The College will be fair in the application of such discretion.

Any continuous period of absence of four weeks or more will suspend the probationary period until the employee returns to work. Notice periods to be given by either party during the probationary period will be one month.

An employee has the right to be accompanied by either a work colleague or trade union representative at any formal meeting relating to this Policy.

6. Monitoring and Review

The Policy will be formally reviewed on an annual basis by the HR Office to reflect any legislative changes. Staff will be informed through regular email communication and through the staff portal regarding any updates to same. It will undergo a formal review every year from the date of approval.

Probation Procedures

1. Introduction

During the Course of the Probation Period, the Line Manager is required to complete at least two reviews of performance. They are as follows:

1. First Probation Review
2. Final Probation Review

2. Probation Review Steps

1. Week 1 Line Manager and Employee meet (Induction/Objectives setting Meeting)
2. First Probation Review This is done at eight weeks of the employees' employment.
3. Final Probation Review This is done at five months of the employee's employment.

2.1 Guidelines for Staff and Managers

1. Introduction

The effectiveness of the probation period and reviews can be significantly improved by open dialogue between the Line Manager and the employee. Therefore, it is essential that both the Line Manager and the employee prepare adequately for probation reviews and regular dialogue.

2. The first Probation Review Meeting – tips

This meeting should provide the employee with an opportunity for further understand:

- The aims of the department/function
- The skills and competencies that are expected.
- The breadth of working relationships that will be necessary to fulfil the role.
- Any identifiable training needs.
- Any additional on the job training.
- The employee should understand and know their progress to date.
- Discussion and resolution of any performance problems.
- Clarification of expectations.
- Identification of any necessary support.
- Agreement of action plan and next meeting, where applicable.

3. Managing underperformance

Issues of under-performance should be discussed by the manager with the employee in the first instance and appropriate action agreed. If a problem persists, the manager, following consultation with Human Resources, should hold a meeting with the employee, outlining expectations and specifying where performance is unacceptable. Following this meeting, the manager will give the employee a written summary of the meeting, including a clear action plan and timescale. This can be done by utilising the Performance Improvement Plan (PIP) (Appendix 1.3). It is essential that the manager communicates to the employee the consequences of failing to improve. This must be clearly outlined to the employee and documented appropriately.

3.1 Week 1: Induction and Objective Setting

At the induction meeting held within the first week, the Line Manager or his/her designate will:

- a. Clarify the duties, responsibilities, and objectives of the employee in line with the job description;
- b. Explain how objectives and performance will be monitored and measured and how frequently this will be done;
- c. Identify and provide relevant training (this may include attendance at internal/external courses or on the job training), where applicable;
- d. Agree and set dates for a first review and final review to be completed within the probationary period.

3.2 The First Probation Review

- a. The first formal assessment will take place at eight weeks. Human Resources will notify the Line Manager of the requirement for a probation review four weeks in advance of the due date for the completion of the probation.
- b. Line Manager reviews relevant documentation.
- c. Line Manager sets up the Review meeting with the employee.
- d. Line Manager fills in the Probation Review Form (Appendix 1.2) insofar as it can be completed in advance of the meeting.
- e. Line Manager gives the form to the employee. This must be done one week in advance of the meeting.
- f. The Line Manager holds the Probation Review meeting with the employee.
- g. Both parties should complete the comments and sign the form.
- h. Both the Line Manager and employee retain a copy of the form for their own records.
- i. The Line Manager submits the original form to Human Resources.

3.3 Review of unsatisfactory performance following the First Probation Review

While an employee endeavours during the probationary period to their suitability for the job, there is a corresponding obligation on the College to draw any work performance issues to the employee's attention to help him/her to improve and to give the employee a set time during which improvements will be monitored. Appropriate training will be provided if required.

It is the Line Manager's responsibility to deal with underperformance specifying where performance is unacceptable and outlining the consequences for the employee of failing to reach the required standard.

If at the first Probation Review, unsatisfactory performance is identified, the Line Manager will liaise with Human Resources to consider and recommend an appropriate course of action.

Such action(s) could include but may not be limited to:

- a. Monthly assessment of the individual for the remainder of his/her probation.
- b. Extension of the probationary period for a limited time and with defined objectives.
- c. The above will be done by setting and agreeing a Performance Improvement Plan (PIP) (Appendix 1.3). The Line Manager will consult with HR on the Performance Improvement Plan prior to meeting with the employee.
- d. Explain the consequences to the employee if required level of performance is not achieved.
- e. Set and agree a timeline to follow up and meet to discuss progress.
- f. The Performance Improvement Plan should be completed and signed by the Line Manager and the employee.
- g. A copy of the Performance Improvement Plan should be sent to Human Resources for record purposes. Both the Line Manager and employee should retain a copy for their own records.
- h. Termination of the contract.

An employee can raise an issue under the College's Grievance Policy and Procedures at any stage during the probationary period.

3.4 Final Probation Review Meeting

The final review should take place within five months of the probationary period start date. The same process as above will apply. Please follow guidelines as set out above.

Please note that the options available at the final review meeting are:

A. Confirmation of appointment

If the employee's performance during probation is satisfactory, Human Resources will confirm the appointment at the end of the probationary period and issue a letter to the employee to this effect.

B. Termination of appointment

The Line Manager should first contact Human Resources to seek further advice at this stage. Human Resources in consultation with the Line Manager will write to the employee formally noting the outcome of the probation and provide formal notice of termination of employment.

It is essential that all Line Managers ensure that all probations are completed for their teams. Please note that any incomplete probations will be addressed through the Line Management structure of the College.

It is essential to note that any of the aforementioned steps, does not preclude regular informal meetings being held between the employee and Line Manager to review progress.
